Getting started with SheetPilot

Clean a messy spreadsheet in a few clicks. Your file never leaves your computer.

Before you begin (do this once)

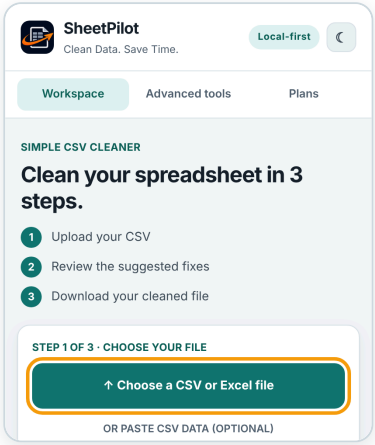

1. Open the Chrome Web Store, search for SheetPilot, and click Add to Chrome.
2. Click the puzzle piece icon at the top right of Chrome, then click the pin next to SheetPilot. Now the icon stays in your toolbar.
3. Click the SheetPilot icon any time. A panel opens on the right side of Chrome. That is where you work.

1 Choose your file

Click Choose a CSV or Excel file (the orange box in the picture) and pick the spreadsheet you want to clean.

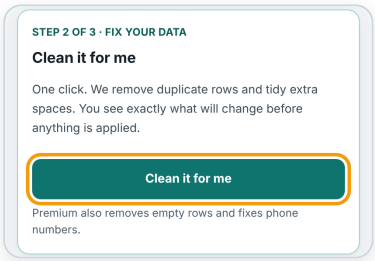

SheetPilot opens it right away and tells you how many rows it found, how many duplicates, and what looks wrong.

> Good to know: your file stays on your computer. Nothing is uploaded.

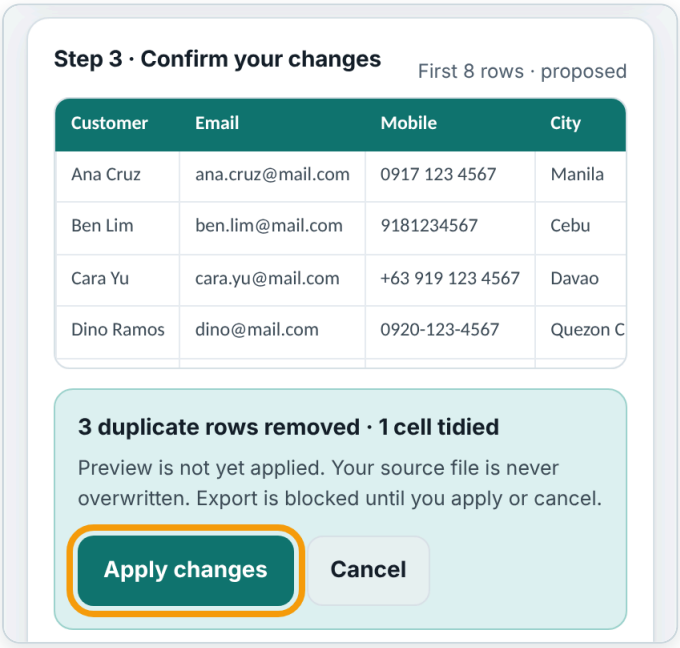

2 Press Clean it for me

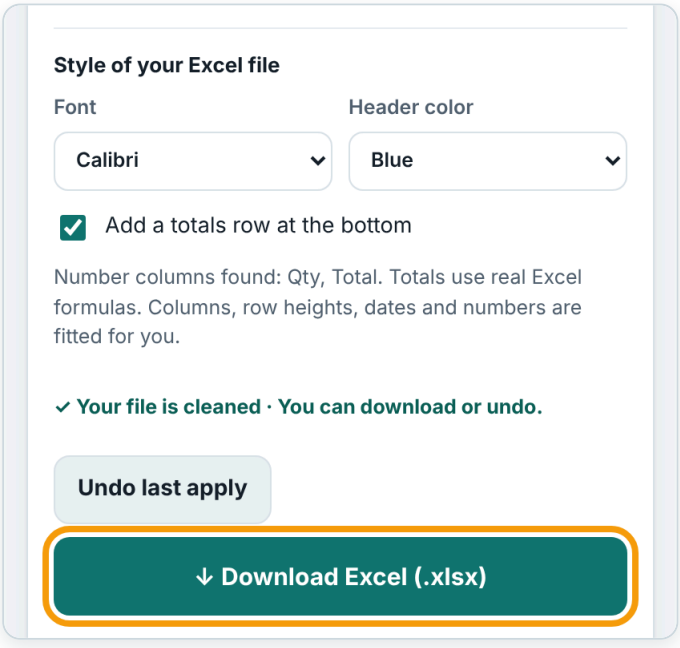

One click removes extra spaces and repeated rows. Nothing is changed yet. SheetPilot shows you a preview first, so you can see exactly what will change.

3 Check the changes, press Apply, then download

First, press Apply changes. Look at the preview. If it looks right, press Apply. If not, press Cancel and nothing changes.

Then pick a font and header color and press Download Excel (.xlsx). Made a mistake? Press Undo last apply.

> Tip: choose the Excel file, not CSV. Excel keeps phone numbers, dates and totals looking right. A CSV opened in Excel can drop the zero at the start of a phone number.
